

Introduction

Contractors' Health & Safety

Welcome

Welcome to the new Peaks & Plains contractors' safety induction.

Good health and safety practice starts with a commitment to ensuring that everything we do that has a safety risk associated with it, is thought through and managed properly. We need to be sure that everything that can practically be done to reduce the risks has been done, for the sake of our customers, our staff and the general public.

It is our aim that nobody should ever be injured as a result of the work we do.

The purpose of this induction process is to enable you, our valued supply chain partners to show their commitment to good health and safety management, where we can demonstrate that our Health and Safety values align.

*Paul Crossland CMIOSH FRSPH
Health and Safety Manager*

Key contacts

The following individuals have key responsibilities relating to health and safety across the Trust. Please note down their contact details and feel free to pass these details to your managers as appropriate.

Paul Crossland (Health and Safety Manager) for most health and safety related queries

- p.crossland@peaksplains.org
- 07915 085236

Sarah Parker (Fire Safety Manager) for fire related queries

- s.parker@peaksplains.org
- 07734 880855

Your PPHT Project Manager / Client Contact / Sponsor; contact details will vary

Mark Howden (Chief Executive) if you have any complaints about our behaviour

- m.howden@peaksplains.org
- 07971 311907

Key safety messages

- We will never knowingly ask your staff to carry out work in an unsafe manner.
- You are responsible for the actions of those you employ (including any sub-contractors) and send to work for the Trust.
- We will require you to create and share with us risk assessments and method statements pertinent to the tasks you are providing to us.

Key safety messages

- Your safety (and that of our customers) comes before the job; if your staff think a task is unsafe, tell them to STOP IMMEDIATELY and speak to your Trust contacts.
- We operate a safety culture where we're always open to new ideas or ways of working that reduce Health and Safety risks; don't keep good ideas to yourself!
- You will be required to adhere to the document entitled "site rules for contractors" (found elsewhere on the site as a downloadable PDF) at all times. *Failure to comply with this document may mean your staff being removed from site until any issues can be resolved. Repeated breaches may lead to the termination of your contract and removal from our approved list of contractors for any future work.
-

Next steps

- Please download and read a copy of the document entitled “site rules for contractors” (found elsewhere on this site in PDF format)
- Once you are happy to work within the guidelines contained in the document, please click on the link elsewhere on this page of our website to sign the acknowledgement form on behalf of your company.
- Failure to sign the form may lead to termination of your contract and removal from our approved list of contractors.

Thank you for your time; it is appreciated.

Stay safe and well.